in components we trust

- routes were for routing

- controllers were just a "top-level" component for the current route.

- components were smarter and could be responsible what if…

in components we trust

- routes were for routing

- controllers were just a "top-level" component for the current route.

- components were smarter and could be responsible